

Introduction:

Special Olympics Unified Champion Schools developed and implemented an Education Leaders Network (ELN) to provide insights, direction, opportunities and access to national education conversations, initiatives, forums and collaborations to advance the characteristics of Unified Champion Schools in policy and practice.

This diverse network brings together national education, civic, special education, corporation, research, social and equity leaders well-positioned to advance Unified Champion Schools with their constituents and their networks. As a result of the ELN, Unified Champion Schools is now positioned with several national initiatives, secured support for its school-based initiatives, implemented two national Education Leaders Roundtable discussions, implemented collaborations with Unified Champion Schools Youth Activation Committee and developed a four-prong set of work to advance Unified Champion Schools in states, districts, schools and communities.

Each of the Special Olympics Unified Champion Schools States have an opportunity to design and implement a State Education Leaders Network engaging local education, civic, social and corporate leaders to advance Unified Champion Schools in their state.

The following identify the purpose, candidates and responsibilities of a State Education Leaders Network for each state to consider as they design their local network:

The purpose of the State Education Leaders Network is to:

- Enhance current relationships with education leaders;
- Secure support from the state's major education stakeholders to advocate for Unified Champion Schools;
- Understand the current and projected education and civic landscape of the state with corresponding opportunities for Unified Champion Schools to participate and contribute;
- Share information on Unified Champion Schools with their constituents so that they become aware of Unified Champion Schools and corresponding adoption opportunities;
- Provide access to state, district and local networks focused on youth development, leadership and engagement;
- Identify events, forums, conferences and inter-actions for Unified Champion Schools to present programmatic information to a broad range of educators, parents, community and business leaders.

"A strong ELN is a key to creating a sustainable culture change through Unified Champion Schools. While the majority of work gets completed by the work and frontline staff, the access to resources, strategic planning and established communication channels comes through the ELN."

– Tim Martin, CEO, Special Olympics Arizona

Members

Each state should determine ELN make up and specific attributes of members, given the State

Programs current collaborations, programing and needs; however the following is a list of attributes and affiliations common to effectively engaging education leaders as members a State Education Leadership Network.

- Representative from the state department of education;
- Association of school administrators;
- Executive Director of the state school boards association;
- Executive Director of the state board of education;
- Executive Director of the state middle schools association;
- Executive Director of the state principals association;
- Teacher well versed in Unified Champion Schools strategies and a leader within their school and/or district;
- Service-learning leader, in most cases this is an individual from the state department of education responsible for additional federal funding;
- District superintendent experienced and supportive of Unified Champion Schools and respected by their peers;
- School principal knowledgeable about Unified Champion Schools and respected by their peers;
- Business leader committed to youth engagement;
- Youth leader from a Unified Champion school and/or university student experienced in Special Olympics;
- Education researcher or policy specialist;
- Human rights leader;
- University of college leader of faculty member committed to youth engagement and social justice.

The number of ELN members is determined by each state, however it is advisable to start small and initially engage five or six members and as you determine specific objectives and responsibilities increase membership.

Responsibilities

Members of the State Education Leaders Network will provide leadership and access to education systems and opportunities to increase the aware-ness of their constituents about Unified Champion Schools and how it aligns with their organization, mission and strategies.

Members will meet three times a year and communicate via e-mail more frequently to provide insights and respond to inquiries from the state Special Olympics CEO on Unified Champion Schools issues.

Members will contribute to Special Olympics Unified Champion Schools resources (authoring articles, op-eds, etc.) and participate, as possible, in forums and conferences representing Special Olympics Unified Champion Schools.

Members will identify and advocate for opportunities for Special Olympics Unified Champion Schools to participate in, contribute to and benefit from state and local collaborations to advance the mission and strategies of Unified Champion Schools.

Members will participate in Special Olympics activities, sports and events to show their support and become more aware of Special Olympics programs and opportunities.

Special Olympics Unified Champion Schools Assistance

Special Olympics Unified Champion Schools staff and consultants are available to assist Special Olympics state CEOs and their staff to identify, recruit and select

State Education Leaders Network members and establish this critical organizational component. In addition Special Olympics Unified Champion Schools National Education Leaders Network members will provide access to their state networks and individuals and encourage them to participate in the State Education Leaders Network.

Members of the Special Olympics Unified Champion Schools National Education Leaders Network include the executive directors of the National Association of State Boards of Education, NEA Foundation and the Campaign for the Civic Mission of Schools; leaders at the American Institutes of Research, the Freedom Forum, IDEA Partnership, American Association of School Administrators and the Public Education Network; and leaders from the business community include the State Farm Insurance Company.

Example Agenda Items For Face-To-Face Meeting

Given that the purpose of the ELN is to:

- Enhance current relationships with education leaders;
- Secure support from the state's major education stakeholders to advocate for Unified Champion Schools;
- Understand the current and projected education and civic landscape of the state with corresponding opportunities for Unified Champion Schools to participate and contribute;
- Share information on Unified Champion Schools with their constituents so that they become aware of Unified Champion Schools and corresponding adoption opportunities;
- Provide access to state, district and local networks focused on youth development, leadership and engagement;
- Identify events, forums, conferences and interactions for Unified Champion Schools to present programmatic information to a broad range of educators, parents, and business leader;

One Way to Frame an ELN Meeting Agenda is to Focus on Three Processes

1. Information (information shared before or during the meeting that increases ELN Members' knowledge of Unified Champion Schools, their responsibilities and how they fit within the state and national organizations).
 - » What do the ELN Members need to know about each other?
 - » What do they need to know about your Program?
 - » What do they need to know about Unified Champion Schools? (Characteristics, research, programs, engagement strategies, scope of work in your state and throughout the U.S., etc.)
 - » What do they need to know about Get Into It, Unified Sports®, and other programs?
 - » What do they need to know about their contributions and responsibilities?

- » What do they need to know about how their work connects with other Program efforts (including the Youth Activation Committee) and national Unified Champion Schools efforts?
 - » What do they need to know about the Teacher Awards?
- 2. Deliberation (guided engaging conversations that take place during the meeting that provide insights with implications for your Program).
- » How do the elements of Unified Champion Schools align with current and projected school priorities, programs, strategies and partnerships? For example, a greater focus on health, a commitment to inclusion, enhance student leadership, focus on school climate, use of sports as a platform for inclusion, etc.). (See Table 11 below from Unified Champion Schools Year 3 Evaluation.)
 - » What opportunities exist to align Unified Champion Schools in schools in your State? This includes cost sharing.
 - » In your district/school how are initiatives successfully integrated and sustained? What are those elements and the sequence of implementation?
 - » What is the most effective information and strategy to inform and influence district and school leaders to consider, adopt and/or adapt school-based strategies? It is important to understand how leaders are influenced so that your Program can create strategies and resources to effectively advance Unified Champion Schools in schools.
 - » What meetings, forums, conferences, work-shops and other venues are available for members of the ELN to share Unified Champion Schools information with their peers?
- 3. Decision-Making (collective decisions that need to be made during the meeting).
- » Prioritize the opportunities surfaced in the “deliberations” session – what is the consensus of the ELN Members on which opportunities/strategies are most timely and effective to advance Unified Champion Schools in schools throughout your state?
 - » What resources do the ELN Members need to implement the strategies (above)?
 - » How can the ELN best be organized? Working together on all tasks? Working in small task groups to focus on specific tasks (e.g., resource development, advocacy, working with the YAC, etc.).
 - » How often and what form should the ELN schedule member interactions?
 - » What specific ways can the ELN contribute to the National Education Leaders Network?

Summary

Establishing and sustaining a quality Special Olympics Unified Champion Schools State Education Leaders Network engages state and local education leaders to assist the state organization to deepen and broaden support for Unified Champion Schools. While the education landscape and the current collaborations are different in every state, the above overview provides information and strategies for states to consider, adopt and/or adapt to engage education leaders in this important work.

State Specific Example

Special Olympics Arizona Education Leaders Network Committee Meeting Minutes: 1/18/2012

Call to Order: 10:00 AM

Members present: Tim Martin, Brian Quinn, Nadine Armstrong, Scott Brown, Lori Ramsey, Daniel Dodge, Becky Raabe, Deb Randazzo, James Lee, Larry Clausen, Sr., Michele Staples, Deb Taylor, Chris Corey, Jim Braden, and Austtin Montoya

Members absent: Chuck Schmidt, Gerry Corcoran, Denton Santareli, Matt Mixer, Isaac Sanft, Dave Alison

Minutes taken by: Austtin Montoya

Call to order: Brian Quinn called the meeting to order at 10:00AM

Meeting Review:

- Brian Quinn introduces the “List of Unified Champion Schools” handout to the group and discusses the progress in signing on schools for Youth Activation, SOAZ/AIA Unified Sports®, and Unified Sports® P.E. Curriculum.
- Scott Brown talks about the progress of his schools (93 and counting).
- Scott Brown explains that 100 schools will descend upon Chandler High School to compete in the largest invitational track meet in the southwestern United States where two Unified Track events will take place on the Saturday of the meet. An estimated 4,000 people will be in attendance for this track meet. The date of the track meet will follow.

- Deb Randazzo
 - Talks about her curriculum update. Avondale, Higley, Bullhead City, Sunnyside, and Vail school districts are now on the board of the Young Athletes program (Elementary Curriculum)
 - Goes over an explanation of the Young Athletes program (For 2 ½ to 7 years of age that works on gross motor skills).
 - Talks about Disability Awareness Week which has been a big hit within the school districts.
 - Talks about how she and Brian Quinn will be training 50 Physical Education teachers at the AZ Dept. of Education Health Education Conference. Each teacher will receive the curriculum and will be trained in how to get the curriculum approved by their school/district.
 - Asks the ELN group how to get the word out about the Physical Education Curriculum.
- Tim Martin talks about how the curriculum is very easy to implement, because the activities are in place for the teachers to present to their classroom.
- Brian Quinn passes out the Youth Activation Program Guide which is for a student leadership group for a Unified Sports® club to run all activities Unified Sports® club to run all activities related to Unified Champion Schools/Youth Activation in their school.
- Daniel Dodge states that the program guide is organized like a “menu” and he finds that very helpful.
- Tim Martin talks about ALPS University and educated the group on the details/specifics (handout is provided to all); and wants to see a focus put on Unified athletes and partners attending the ALPS University.
- Brian Quinn asks the group for thoughts on new ideas for Youth Activation activities and asks the committee if there are any student athletic group leaders that he could tap into for Youth Activation.
- Scott Brown states that a lot of high schools do not necessarily have a leadership council, but a lot of the students would be able to be easily identified by the coaches and/or athletic directors at their school.
- Jim Braden states that Character Matters has been implemented at each of the high schools in his district.
 - Each of the high schools will have a Captains Corner, where all of the captains of all of the athletic programs will meet once a week and the Captains Corner will be involved very closely with Unified Sports®.
- The Special Education department did have a special homecoming for their kids and non-special education students invited the special education students to the traditional dance.
- Brian Quinn asks the group if they have any marketing ideas for Unified Champion Schools
 - Larry Clausen, Sr. provides the group with an Arizona Developmental Disabilities Planning Council handout and talks about how Youth Activation could tie in to the Council’s goals.
 - The Arizona Developmental Disabilities Planning Council has the power to sponsor events up to $5000. Basically the Council can support events or activities that pro-mote the Council’s goals.
- Tim Martin talks about the LETR “Make That Change” program (A quarter mile of quarters lined up on a schools track). Chandler School District has raised $7000 dollars in the past two and a half weeks just for Unified Champion Schools. A quarter mile of quarters is about $4600 dollars.
- He also shares information about the Unified Tax Credit – Legislation to allow for Unified Sports to be an additional tax credit donation for participating schools.

- Larry Clausen, Sr. asks a question about the Law Enforcement Torch Run being an annual run. Tim Martin states that yes even though it is an annual run for the Summer Games, LETR is the biggest fundraising group year-round for Special Olympics Arizona. LETR has risen over $500,000 dollars through various events.
- Jim Braden asks if the AIAAA has placed Special Olympics Arizona on their September 2012
- Conference Agenda? Michele Staples states that this subject will definitely be discussed at the September 2012 Conference.
- Daniel Dodge states that ROTC community service involvement might be a good lead, because they are a big service provider on his campuses. The ROTC is always looking for community service involvement opportunities.
- Brian Quinn asks Larry Clausen, Sr. about the $5000 sponsorship opportunity. Larry Clausen, Sr. states that in order to receive the sponsorship, the activity or event must tie in to one of the Council's three goals. In addition, the Council has to be prominently displayed as a sponsor.
- Nadine Armstrong talks about the Healthy Athletes program (handout provided); Tim Martin talks about sponsoring the AZ Dept. of Education Health Education Conference on January 28th to present the Healthy Athletes Program (8 week curriculum) to over 50 registered nurses who will hopefully pick that up and teach in each school.

- Brian Quinn talks about the Youth Activation Committee handout and solicits ideas to promote the program.
- Ideas include:
 - SOAZ/AIA Unified Sports® leaders to promote at their schools
 - Post great photos on Facebook; Becky Raabe talks about the positive aspects of Facebook
 - Have an email bank to spread news electronically
 - Link up to participating School District websites
 - Positive news in the paper (Community Sections of the AZ Republic)
 - Tap into city television channels
 - Athletes sit in on IEP meetings / AZ Center for Disability Law
 - Larry Clausen, Sr. offers ideas about partnering with Raising Special Kids to help network the program
- Michele Staples talks about the AIA Luncheon Awards and the Nick Sundberg Award for Athlete & Partner of the Year.
- Brian Quinn informs the group of the Spread the Word to End the Word campaign on March 7th.
- Athlete, Chris Corey, talks about his experience participating in the R-Word campaign.

Frequently Asked Questions

Q. How many members should we have on the ELN?

A. It varies by state, however the norm is between 10 and 15 members

Q. How often should the ELN meet?

A. Face-to-face meetings occur either quarterly or twice a year, supported by more frequent web-based or conference call meetings. Initially it is recommended to host a face-to-face meeting for everyone to get to know each other and from that meeting determine the frequency and types of formal interactions.

Q. How does the ELN fit into the State Program organization?

A. Some states align the ELN with their State Program Board and ask one of the Board members to act as the ELN chair; other states organize the ELN as an ad hoc committee that reports to the CEO/Executive Director. In addition there is a benefit to aligning the placement of the ELN in the organizational structure with the State Youth Activation Committee (see the SOAZ organizational chart).

Q. Is there a prescribed term or term limit for members of the ELN?

A. Each State Program determines this; our suggestion is at least an initial two-year term so that there is continuity during the development of the ELN.

Q. Does the ELN need by-laws?

A. In most cases that level of formality is not needed. One of the reasons aligning the ELN with the State Program Board is a good idea, is to provide some structure to the group's purpose and role.

Q. What are the types of individuals representing organizations that should be on the ELN?

A. Leaders from organizations and networks from the state, district and school levels make for the best ELN composition as each of these levels impact how schools are organized and conduct their work.
