MESSAGE FROM AN ATHLETE LEADER

Dear Friends,

My name is Szeto Chi Long, and I am honored to serve as a Regional Messenger for Special Olympics East Asia and as a member of the Regional Athlete Leadership Council. As an athlete leader from Special Olympics Hong Kong living with autism, I am currently studying at the Hong Kong Design Institute. In addition to my studies, I take pride in volunteering at Healthy Athletes screening events, organizing activities, and hosting game booths to promote health and inclusion within our community.

My academic work in animation production requires strong skills in drawing, presentation, and writing. Although I sometimes feel discouraged by my current abilities in sketching, editing, and scene design, I refuse to give up. I embrace these challenges as opportunities to practice diligently, refine my technique, and achieve both academic success and personal growth.

My journey with Special Olympics began in 2011 when I first participated in bocce and golf. Initially, I struggled with confidence during bocce training and competitions. However, over time, I learned to embrace my weaknesses, dedicated myself to improvement, and ultimately discovered a genuine passion for sport. In 2023, I was thrilled to win a gold and a silver medal at the Special Olympics East Asia Regional Bocce Competition — a moment made possible by the unwavering support of my teammates, friends, and family.

Becoming an athlete leader has been a profound and transformative experience. In 2023, I had the honor of participating in the Global Athlete Congress in Berlin, Germany, where I connected with athlete leaders from around the world, engaged in group activities, and proudly showcased the outcomes of our inclusion events. Following the Congress, I furthered my leadership journey by attending athlete leadership training sessions in Taicang and Beijing, deepening my commitment to the Special Olympics movement.

As an athlete leader, I aspire to collaborate with fellow athletes and mentors to organize events that foster inclusive awareness. Together, we can help more people learn to respect, support, and embrace one another, ultimately building a more inclusive and welcoming society for all.

Finally, I want to leave you with this message: challenges are not obstacles; they are opportunities for growth, resilience, and discovery. They test us, strengthen us, and inspire us to reach new heights. As a challenger, I encourage each of you to embrace the opportunities before you, remain open-minded, and welcome the experiences that will enrich the color and meaning of your life.

Thank you for being a part of this journey toward inclusion and empowerment.

Sincerely,
Ron Szeto

MESSAGE FROM LEADERSHIP

Dear Friends,

On behalf of Special Olympics East Asia (SOEA) I am pleased to share with you our efforts for the past year. In 2024, we continue to see our Programs working hard to recover from the Covid pandemic as we return to normalcy in terms of sports training and competitions, organizational development and leadership efforts, health screenings and fitness programs, etc. Our mission to engage people with and without intellectual disabilities (ID) into our Movement to promote inclusion and equality remains our unwavering focus.

Our Sports team is determined to introduce and cultivate new sports for our athletes. To do so, we must engage and train coaches to lead our athletes to reach their potential best in these new sports. Our wide array of sports activities include expansion of MATP, 3x3 Basketball as well as Community sports engagement. We are also promoting female sports in compliance with SOI priorities. All in all, we are working hard to increase our athletes and participants' count to beyond pre-pandemic figures by offering our Programs excellent learning opportunities and competitions for our athletes.

Leadership and capacity building amongst our Programs, athlete and youths as well as organizational excellence are always key focal areas for our East Asia Organizational Development department. We resumed holding our annual Regional Leadership Council meetings off-line while holding regular virtual quarterly meetings with Program Leadership in addition to frequent communications to ensure compliance and synergy between our Regional office and Program staff. Engaging athletes and their Unified partners, as part of our Unified Schools efforts, takes priority.

Maximizing awareness and building brand presence is core to the efforts orchestrated by our Marketing, Communications and Development team to promote Special Olympics in and beyond our Region. We cultivate relationships with a wide variety of partners, ambassadors, donors and supporters while promoting our brand via social media, both domestically and internationally. Fundraising in the current climate has become more challenging, however we are blessed to continuously receive the support of existing donors and sponsors who are avidly introducing new potential supporters to us.

Freda M. Fung
Regional President
& Managing Director
Special Olympics East Asia

Our Healthy Athletes screenings continuously provide pro-bono medical service to ensure our athletes receive opportunities to understand and maintain their physical and mental health better. Many local-funded screening events have been successfully organized and executed by our Health team. We now have 8 disciplines serving the health of our athletes, the newest being “Strong Minds” which focuses on the mental well-being of our athletes.

All in all, we’ve had a busy year and we are most grateful for the generous support that you, our supporters, donors and partners, have granted to us. We would not be able to achieve our goals and targets for our Movement in our Region without your contributions. On behalf of our SOEA team, our athletes and families, we would like to take this opportunity to thank all of you for your great support to us throughout the year.

Thank you and we are looking forward to an even more exciting 2025 and working with you to continue making this world one of more acceptance and inclusion.

With thanks and blessings,

Our Time to Shine

Year Round

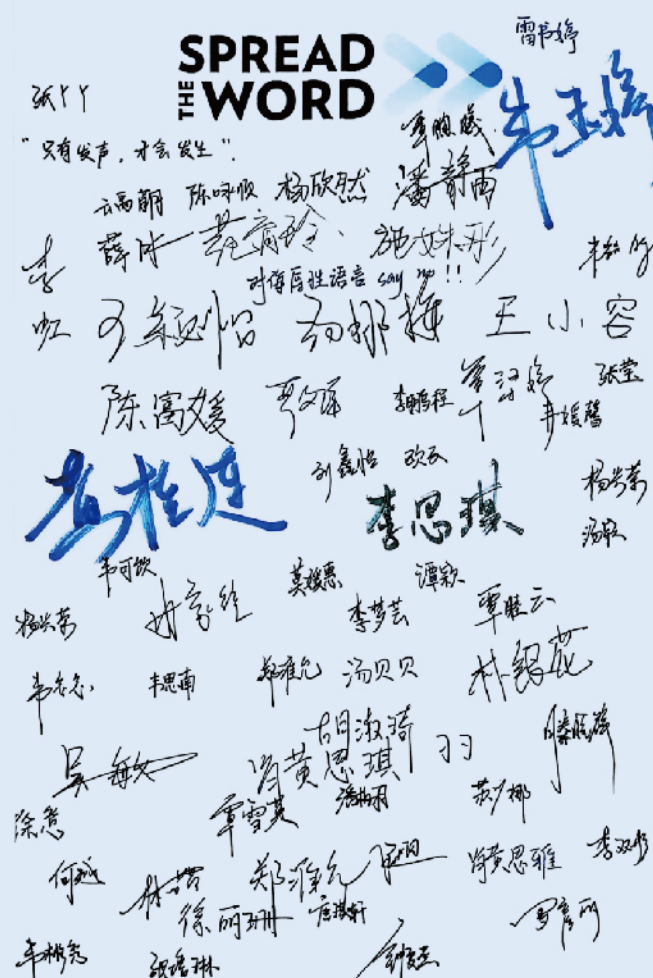

In 2024, Special Olympics East Asia continued its tradition of amplifying athlete voices by featuring seven personal stories on Weibo and WeChat. What began as a way to stay connected has evolved into a powerful platform for athletes to share their journeys, celebrate the people who support them, and showcase their unique perspectives and abilities.

These narratives provide insight into the diverse experiences of individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities, highlighting how inclusion-when paired with the right support and opportunities-can lead to meaningful personal growth. Whether through Unified Sports or expanded leadership initiatives, these stories convey a shared message: every individual, regardless of background, has the potential to thrive.

Year Round

In 2024, alongside traditional pledge posts across social media channels, Special Olympics East Asia expanded the Spread the Word campaign by promoting it through a digital platform dedicated to student volunteering opportunities in mainland China. This approach successfully attracted over 600 students, introducing them to Special Olympics, intellectual and developmental disabilities (IDD), and the core message of the campaign.

Inspired by this initiative, students from previously uninvolved universities organized offline Spread the Word activities, encouraging their peers and raising awareness about inclusion for individuals with IDD.

Program Excellence

June 14-15, 2024

The Special Olympics East Asia Regional Leadership Council Meeting was successfully held in Inje County, Korea, with full attendance from representatives of all six Programs, including athlete representatives.

Lou Lauria, Chief of Games and Competition at Special Olympics International, presented the Sport Impact Standard Guidelines, emphasizing the importance of high-quality event operations and sports presentation. He facilitated discussions on increasing female athlete participation and enhancing communication with sports partners to promote the Special Olympics movement.

Dipak Natali, Regional President of Special Olympics Asia Pacific, outlined a strategic plan to re-engage athletes and key participants lost during the COVID-19 pandemic, sharing best practices from the SOAP region. He also explored collaboration opportunities between East Asia and the Asia Pacific region to strengthen the influence of Special Olympics and increase participation.

As a traditional part of the meeting, each Program shared highlights and best practices from the past year, showcasing their significant achievements. These sessions fostered learning and provided valuable insights for future collaboration.

Coinciding with the meeting was the Unified Games hosted by Special Olympics Korea, where participants witnessed the grand opening ceremony. Everyone engaged with athletes and Unified partners, participated in a Unified badminton activity, and strengthened friendships through sports, celebrating the spirit of the Special Olympics movement.

UNIFIED SCHOOLS
Unified Schools Virtual Training

April & December

To engage schools and promote educational transformation on campus, Special Olympics Unified Schools training continues to serve as the foundational step for those embarking on the Unified Schools initiative. The virtual training sessions were held on April 22-23 and December 2-3, reaching 630 participants from both special and regular schools, as well as community-based institutions serving individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities in mainland China. This was made possible through the support of Special Olympics China and the China Association of Intellectual Disability Persons and Their Relatives.

In addition to the Unified Schools Program, dedicated experts and lecturers introduced various programs, including Unified Sports, the Motor Activity Training Program, Young Athletes, and Inclusive Health. These sessions featured success stories and personal experiences shared by Unified Champion Schools, family leaders, and youth leaders, effectively illustrating how Unified Schools impact campus culture and individual growth.

A post-event survey revealed a 99.6% satisfaction rate among participants, highlighting teachers' desire for collaborative efforts among society, schools, families, and individuals to create more inclusive opportunities for engaging people with and without intellectual and developmental disabilities, ultimately fostering a more inclusive society.

Special Education School Gathering

October & November

Special schools play a crucial role in advancing local Special Olympics programming across various aspects of the movement. On October 23 and November 13, 2024, Special Olympics East Asia successfully hosted two Special Education School Gatherings in Beijing and Shanghai, bringing together school administrators and representatives from 49 schools and government units. The purpose of these gatherings was to promote exchange and collaboration in revitalizing school engagement, particularly between the Beijing-Tianjin-Hebei region and the Yangtze River Delta region.

Key topics included the opportunities and challenges that Special Olympics presents to schools and how the movement can inspire collaboration in building an inclusive future. Additionally, the meetings addressed the expansion of regional and local competition opportunities, with Special Olympics serving as a bridge to strengthen cooperation between special and regular schools.

The open and constructive communication fostered during these meeting helped reconnect with schools, paving the way for a more dynamic environment and establishing successful practices for local programming growth facilitated by special schools.

FAMILY ENGAGEMENT AND YOUNG ATHLETES

Family Engagement

Year Round

The SOEA family online resources continue to serve as a valuable learning platform, welcoming new families to the World of Special Olympics and nurturing their growth as family leaders. By the end of 2024, 100 families and individuals from over 30 community-based family clubs began their learning journey, with 42 successfully completing the 20-hour curriculum and receiving certification.

August 21-23, 2024

Special Olympics East Asia Family Leadership Forum was successfully held in Ulaanbaatar, Mongolia, with over 60 family leaders and Program staff from six Special Olympics East Asia Programs attending this first in-person regional family forum since the pandemic.

Despite its relatively short history, Special Olympics Mongolia has made significant strides in family initiatives. The event brought together 28 passionate family leaders from more than ten regions, including some remote and underdeveloped areas of Mongolia, all eager to learn and explore breakthroughs within their communities. Ten years after its establishment, Special Olympics Mongolia has grown its family program from the ground up to a nationwide initiative, with family members and leaders working intensively at the grassroots level across the country.

The forum emphasized family engagement practices and the structures established at the Program level within SOEA, featuring in-depth discussions that clarified the roles of family leaders and outlined the advocacy landscape for promoting inclusion. Moreover, it provided a memorable opportunity for families from across the Region to unite and strengthen their connections through network building.

Young Athletes Expansion

Year Round

With funding support from the UPS Foundation, Special Olympics Hong Kong and Special Olympics Chinese Taipei have resumed Young Athletes (YA) initiatives at schools and community centers following the COVID-19 pandemic.

Special Olympics Hong Kong completed an 8-week Young Athletes (YA) training program for 124 children with intellectual and developmental disabilities from 9 special schools. Additionally, 34 new YA coaches were trained through a Train-The-Trainer workshop, equipping them to apply their knowledge in teaching. As a year-end celebration, a YA Challenge Day showcased the children's overall progress and inspired local UPS employees to continue their engagement with the Young Athletes program.

Meanwhile, Special Olympics Chinese Taipei hosted a 16-week program at three locations in Taichung. During this period, two Young Athletes Coach Trainings were conducted in Chiayi and Taichung, attracting a total of 65 participants. To evaluate the coaches' learning, two Unified Young Athletes Games were held, bringing together 224 children with and without intellectual and developmental disabilities, significantly raising public awareness about the abilities of children with special needs. The host university expressed interest in organizing a Young Athletes Games on campus next year.

August 23, 2024

Special Olympics Mongolia launched a pilot program for Healthy Young Athletes during the Regional Family Leadership Forum in Ulaanbaatar. Over 20 children participated in enjoyable sports activities, alongside both oral and optical screenings. This initiative benefited children with intellectual and developmental disabilities and their families by promoting overall health improvements. Furthermore, the inclusion of children without intellectual and developmental disabilities highlighted the program's commitment to inclusivity throughout the event.

GOVERNMENT RELATIONS

Throughout 2024, SOEA collaborated closely with the SOI HQ Global Development and Government Relations (GDGR) team to enhance relationships with key diplomatic stakeholders. A highlight of this effort was Ms. Freda Fung, SOEA Regional President and Managing Director, being warmly welcomed by Minister-Counselor Ms. Chunmei Chen at the Chinese Embassy in Washington, D.C in October. This meeting reinforced goodwill and mutual support for the movement.

Additionally, the SOEA Regional Office continued its efforts to assist China and Mongolia in fulfilling their commitments to the Global Leadership Coalition for Inclusion. Building on their 2023 pledges to join the Coalition, further actions were taken to help both countries advance the implementation of their objectives.

SO China

Year round

In 2024, Special Olympics East Asia enhanced its engagement with the new leadership of Special Olympics China through a series of virtual and in-person meetings, fostering a deeper understanding of the Global Leadership Coalition for Inclusion and advancing its objectives. This collaboration resulted in the establishment of over 600 new Unified Schools across mainland China.

Additionally, the China Disabled Persons' Federation expressed interest in bidding to host a future Special Olympics World Games and plans to attend the 2025 World Winter Games in Turin. To support long-term growth, SOEA contributed to the drafting of a Special Olympics China Development White Paper Compilation Framework. This framework aims to assist Special Olympics China in formulating guidelines for localized development, thereby expanding the reach and quality of programming nationwide.

UN PARTNERSHIPS

Partnership with UNICEF

Year round

In 2024, eight Youth Innovation Projects were successfully implemented across Special Olympics Macau, China, and Korea, focusing on key themes such as Health & Fitness, Advocacy and Community Engagement, Unified Sports, and Women's Empowerment. Collectively, these projects engaged over 17,000 youth with and without intellectual and developmental disabilities, fostering inclusion and youth leadership throughout the region.

Building on the successful experience of selecting, monitoring, and celebrating Youth Innovation Projects in 2023, Special Olympics East Asia (SOEA) once again partnered with UNICEF China for the 2024 cycle. Six projects from Special Olympics China received technical support from UNICEF China. Among these, the "Warmth Inclusion" project in Hangzhou was highlighted as a featured human-interest story by SOEA and UNICEF China, showcasing the importance of inclusive employment and vocational skills development for individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities (IDD). Project leaders Wang Chang and Zhou Yuchu were featured in a co-produced video that garnered over 350,000 views across UNICEF China and SOEA's social media platforms.

Meanwhile, Child Protection Officer Yin Jia moderated the "Youth in Action" panel, showcasing how young people are driving change and putting disability inclusion into practice.

Partnership with UNDP

Year round

Collaboration on the development of the Movers Programme resources continued in 2024. SOEA optimized two additional modules—Storytelling and Leadership—to make them more accessible and relatable, particularly for individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities (IDD). These revised modules now include real-life stories and best practices from Special Olympics athletes, bringing the content to life. Unified Leadership principles have also been integrated throughout, promoting inclusive mindsets and behaviors to a wider audience.

Additionally, UNDP further supported the SOEA Unified Leadership Assembly by sending Youth Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion Coordinator Vivian Lam to Beijing to lead a session on Wellbeing, a module co-developed and enhanced by SOEA in 2023. We also facilitated connections and hosted several official meetings between Special Olympics East Asia, Special Olympics Asia Pacific, and the UNDP Asia Pacific office to collaboratively empower youth with disabilities across the regions where both SOEA and SOAP operate.

LETTER FROM CHAIRMAN OF REGIONAL LEADERSHIP COUNCIL

Dear athletes, families, partners, supporters and colleagues,

As we wrap up 2024 in the Special Olympics East Asia region, I'm truly grateful. This year has been a remarkable display of the dedication of our athletes, coaches, volunteers, partners and staff. Their efforts have made a real difference in the lives of people with intellectual disabilities.

The Special Olympics isn't just about sports. It's about inclusion, empowerment, and changing the world. In 2024, we saw this spirit in every corner of our region, from local training to cross-Program events. We're committed to providing year-round sports training and competitions for our athletes.

Local programming, as emphasized in Special Olympics strategic plan, is extremely important. Local events are where our athletes start their journey. These events help them learn new skills, gain confidence, and make friends. They also bring communities together, breaking down barriers and promoting acceptance. In 2024, local competitions and events across our region proved the value of such programming.

Looking ahead to 2025, we're excited about the Special Olympics World Winter Games in Turin, Italy. This global event will be a great chance for our athletes to show what they've learned through local training. It's a platform for them to inspire the world and prove that with support, they can achieve anything. We're sure our SOEA athletes will do us proud in Turin.

I want to thank everyone involved in our success in the SOEA region. Your hard work has made a huge impact. Together, we're building a more inclusive world. Let's look forward to 2025 with hope and energy, knowing that the future of Special Olympics in East Asia is full of promise.

Sincerely,
